Notes.

The condition of Speaker Carlisle is much improved to-day and his physicians thinks he will be able to be about as soon as the weather moderates.

The resolution offered in the senate by Mr. Ingalls, declaring that the senate does not assent to Mr. Edmund's declaration, went over until to-morrow, as did the resolution by Mr. Blair, approving his course.

The bill which passed the house providing for the sale of the Sac and Fox Indian reservation in Nebraska and Kansas, concerns a tract of land consisting of 8,014 acres. It is provided in the bill that the lands shall be sold to the highest bidder, and not for less than $8 per acre. Provision is also made that actual settlers are to have these lands, in quantities not to exceed 160 acres. There are residing on the reservation at present seventy-five Indians only.

The Fire Record.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 12.—The Crew street public school building was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $15,000. Six hundred children are thrown out of school. The fire is considered incendiary.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 12.—The Missouri Pacific bridge at St. Albans, one hundred miles west of here, burned last night. Traffic is suspended to-day, but a temporary structure will be in position by 9 o'clock to-night. The origin of the fire is unknown.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., February 11.

This morning, at an early hour, the Kanawha house, owned by Beach Hedges, located on Kanawha street, the business centre of the city, was discovered on fire. The wind was blowing heavy and in a short time the whole building was wrapped in a mass of flames. The building is two stories and a half, the upper part being occupied by Abe Harris. The hotel ground floor consisted of three store rooms occupied by E. Moses, saloon; Williams & Isam, saloon; while the third was occupied by Walter Hanna, a wholesale dealer and manufacturer of tin ware, stoves, etc. Young's building, next below the hotel, was occupied by John Castello, saloon.

Richard McLaughlin, a tinner, working for Hanna, was confined to his bed with sickness and in the excitement attending the fire at the time, it was forgotten that he was in the building and this morning while searching among the ruins a small portion of his body was found in the cellar charred and blackened so that it was hard to tell it was the remains of a human being. The fire evidently was the work of an incendiary, as the same building was discovered on fire about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, but the flames were extinguished with slight damage. There have been a number of small fires in the city during the past two weeks, and the officers say that there are fire bugs here. Excitements runs high, and should the fire bugs be caught there will be trouble. Three families, who were in the hotel, escaped with no clothing other than their night clothing. The thermometer was four degrees below zero.

CINCINNATI, O., February 11.—L. J. Lerner & Sons, of Dresden, bankers and general merchants, made an assignment yesterday to Hon. E. Little, of Zanesville, for the benefit of creditors. The liabilities are not known.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11.—A fire this morning destroyed a hotel, one saloon, six stores, cabinet shop and a harness shop.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., February 11.—The small detached building belonging to the county poor house, three miles west of Monticello, Ills., burned some time during Monday night and three demented women, the only occupants of the building, perished in the flames. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Civil Service.

The president, to-day, transmitted to congress the second annual report of the civil service commission, covering a period from January 15, 1884, to January 15, 1885. In his letter transmitted he says, the commission is in the second year of its existence and the president congratulates the country on the success of its labors. He commends the subject to favorable consideration by congress, and asks for an appropriation to continue the work. The report is comprehensive, giving a full account of the action of the commission and the results achieved. It says the civil service law has been found practicable and effective for the accomplishment of its purpose. Only a single complaint was made of the political discrimination against any appointing officer, and that was the case of a postmaster in Ohio. After investigation by the commission no evidence appeared in support of the charge.

The report advised legislation upon the model New York law of 1884, approved by Governor Cleveland, which forbids any one, whether he be a public officer or not, to solicit contributions from persons in the public service.

Court Martial.

The court martial in Colonel Morrow's case is that he be reprimanded by the secretary of war, and that he retain his present grade for two years. The case will be referred to the president for final action.

Ex-Governor Boutwell and Edmund Kennedy appeared as counsel for General Swaim before the General court martial to-day and objected to General Newton sitting as a member of the court. This objection was overruled and the accused then objected to Colonel Bradley. The court overruled the objection and adjourned.

Notes.

The condition of Speaker Carlisle is much improved to-day and his physicians thinks he will be able to be about as soon as the weather moderates.

The resolution offered in the senate by Mr. Ingalls, declaring that the senate does not assent to Mr. Edmund's declaration, went over until to-morrow, as did the resolution by Mr. Blair, approving his course.

The British War Department Alleges that all News of Gordon's Fate are Rumors.

Portugal Comes to Terms and the Congo River Question to be Settled.

The Fate of Gordon.

London, Feb. 12.—Wolseley telegraphs from Karti to the government that no reliable particulars about the fate of General Gordon have been received. He assures the ministry that the present reports are all based upon rumors and states the rumors were collected by Colonel Wilson's party from their return down the Nile from a futile attempt to reach Khartoum.

Lord Wolseley informs the government that the mudir of Dongola and natives thereabout persist that Khartoum has not yet fallen and Colonel Wilson is positive there is little or no doubt on this point. Lord Wolseley himself hopes to receive in a few days special and reliable information concerning the question at Khartoum and the fate of Gordon from trustworthy spies.

A Council of War.

A council of war was held at the war office at noon. Duke Cambridge, commander in chief, presided. The principal officers thus far selected for service in the new expedition to Soudan were present. Duke Cambridge will Saturday review the guards previous to their departure for Egypt. The members of the guards absent on leave have already reported for duty.

No More Fighting Just Now.

Cairo, Feb. 12.—The khedive to-day received a telegram from Wolseley, in which he says he believes they will be no more fighting along the Nile until General Brackenbury reaches Berber with the late General Earle's force.

LONDON, February 11.—The cabinet met at 11 o'clock this morning and are still in session.

John Moorley, the Liberal member of parliament for New Castle, upon the Tyne, replying to a depiction who called to-day to obtain the expression of his views upon the subject of the appropriation of large tracts of lands for deer forests, said, he thought parliament would not much longer tolerate the laws which permitted an American like Mr. Wimans to occupy three hundred square miles of highlands in Scotland for pleasure grounds for the exclusive use of himself and friends.

The war office refuses to officially confirm the dispatch which states that General Wolseley telegraphed the government that the scouts sent from Khartoum to ascertain the fate of General Gordon, have returned with the proofs of his death.

An important seizure of dynamite was made last night by the police.

Their attention has been directed to the auspicious movements of a man supposed to be an American, who sometime before the explosions at the house of commons and the tower, rented an unoccupied house in Harrow

Road and fitted the ground floor up as a book store. The man was seldom seen about the premises and has not been seen at all in the neighborhood since the date of the recent explosion.

The latter fact induced the police to place the bookstore under surveillance and finally made a seizure on the ground floor. They found a large quantity of dynamite. At the time of the seizure, the bookstore was in charge of a man of American appearance and accent.

Detective Roper, who during the examination of Cunningham and Burton ers were acquaintances and swore that he saw them together near Burton's letter dated Paddington, containing threats against his life.

The Standard's correspondent with General Earle's column, sends the following dispatch, dated Dulka island:

"Tuesday the British troops advanced to attack the enemy in a strong position on the hills. After some fighting, with the enemy completely surrounded,

and finding it impossible to dislodge

the rebels from their fortified position,

General Earle ordered the troops to charge. General Earle was killed while leading the attack. The Black Watch regiment captured the position at the point of the bayonet, the cavalry taking possession of the enemy's camps. General Brackenbury, upon assuming command, ordered the remaining positions to be stormed. The troops acted promptly and made a gallant attack. The positions were soon captured.

There is grumbling among the officers of the treasury department because the house appropriation committee has ignored their request for an increase of salary.

Or the 1,900 miles of street in London 63 1/4 miles are paved with wood, the area of the latter being 980,000 square yards, and the approximate cost $3,000,000.

A SCHOOLMISTRESS in Barry county, Michigan, was dismissed because she declined to eat fat pork, the people believing that she was attempting to put on "too much style."

The officers of the Greely expeditions cannot receive the thanks of congress, because their brother officers think it unjust to place them by such action in the front rank of promotion.

The Saginaw Courier is confident that the era of wholesale land robbery has nearly ended. "Good reason why," comments the Philadelphia Record, "the wholesale land has nearly ended too."

PRATT chickens are more abundant in Minnesota now than formerly, but the race has changed; their legs are feathered, and their flesh, from feeding in the wheat fields has become a delicate white.

Mr. CLEVELAND expresses himself as greatly pleased at the result of his visit to New York city. He had met a large number of the leaders of his party and been strengthened by their opinions and suggestions.

A NEW ORLEANS doctor calls attention to a very simple fact which merits attention from medicine-takers. If the medicine is mixed with very cold water, and a few swallows of the water be taken as a preparatory dose, the nerves of the organ of taste become sufficiently numbed to make the medicine nearly tasteless. The method will not disguise bitter tastes, but acts well in oils and salines.

Mr. HAYDEN's bill requiring contractors to collect and receipt for all monies due for street improvements at the city treasurer's office, passed by a vote of 84 yeas to 1 nay. The bill was introduced at the request of members of the Fort Wayne council and will obviate much of the difficulty resulting from collections made direct from the property holders, whom it benefits as well as the contractor.

THERE are fewer daily papers in London now than there were a generation ago, and it is the same process of the extinction of the weakest that seems to be going on in New York. But the great London dailies have made themselves strong, not by cheap prices, but by good work. The mistake that has been made in this country, in the active competition among the too numerous newspapers, is trying to give the papers away instead of making them so good, that the public will be glad to buy them.

CARD SCHURZ is distributing some solid chunks of sense down south. A report of his lecture at Atlanta says: "He advocated good housekeeping, and said soda biscuit and bad pie would ruin any man's stomach, and when the stomach is ruined the man is done for. He related some interesting stories illustrating the high esteem in which a good housewife is held. [One was Bismarck's wife, who 'carried the keys' daugling by her side, and said that to a man of sense there is an attraction about a bunch of keys which a bunch of diamonds never possessed.]

THE INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Mr. Robertson's bill for the perfect organization of boards of county commissioners was defeated in the house yesterday. The bill provides that when a majority of the board are absent from any regular meeting the sheriff and auditor shall adjourn the meeting till next day; the same shall be done the next day if a majority is not present. If on the third day a majority is still absent the sheriff and auditor shall proceed to appoint a board from the reputable citizens of the county, and from each unrepresented district.

The coroner's bill, fixing the per diem at $6 for the first and $2.50 for each additional day, with mileage, came up on the third reading. In the discussion that followed it was shown that but four counties paid more than $6 per day, and while the bill reduced the salary of four coroners, it really increased the per diem of all the rest. The bill was defeated by a vote of 78 to 9.

The senate passed the following bills: To prevent the spread of Canada thistles; Campbell's bill to prevent bribery at elections; requiring platt of additions to cities and towns submitted to the council before recorded; authorizing county commissioners to issue bonds to court houses and other public buildings; empowering the commissioners of adjoining counties to build orphans' homes; dividing Delaware and Randolph counties into separate judicial circuits, and prohibiting a change of school books without the consent of the county superintendent.

The bill providing for a temporary state loan was postponed until Wednesday, to await the report of the committee investigating the condition of the new insane asylum.

Many medicines now on the market of what virtue they possess to the presence of powerful and poisonous drugs. Hunt's (kidney and liver) remedy is purely vegetable and will not injure the feeblest and most delicate person.

The Metropolitan railway company, London, issues 72,000,000 tickets yearly.

Many whose blood had become poisoned from various causes and whose ill health was indicated by pimples, sore feelings, aches, pains, urinary sediments, catarrh and inflammation of the mucous membrane, constipation, dyspepsia, bad dreams, nervousness, sleeplessness, etc., have been restored to perfect health by using Dr. Guyott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It is the only true blood purifier and strengthener of mind and body. No other remedy equals it.

Fifty thousand people from the United States are estimated to have visited the Montreal carnival.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Mr. Gladstone has made learned translations from the Greek, Latin, Italian and German.

Truth is mighty and must prevail. So, too, must Mishler's Herb Bitters prevail over all forms of kidney and liver disease. Dyspepsia and indigestion likewise yield to the magic of its power. Read what Millard Mosier, of Barclay street, New York, says: "After suffering torments from dyspepsia and indigestion I found a complete cure in your remedy. My wife was also cured of severe neuralgia."

Several natural gas wells have been struck along the line of the Canada Pacific railway.

Piles.

Piles are one of the most disagreeable and painful of disorders. They are generally produced by sedentary habits, indigestion or intemperance. The disease is common occurrence, and to affect a certain cure should be promptly treated by proper remedies. There is nothing more suitable by its wonderful curative action than Pond's Extract Ointment, in which the medicinal virtues of Pond's Extract, which are very valuable in the above complaint, are in a state of great concentration. It is advisable in every instance however, to use both the Extract and the Ointment. Ask your druggist and be sure and get the right article.

Two More Important Cures.

Your agent being in Columbus, Ga., a few days ago, and inquiring the results of his experiments, he replied, "I have two more important cures effected by Swift's Specific to report." This venerable man is known far and wide for his unceasing labors of love in the behalf of the poor of Columbus. It will be remembered that the Sweet Sarsaparilla Co. distributed the amount of their famous medicinal to be distributed by Mr. Campbell among the poor of the city; hence his remark. He said:

"I have just seen a lady who has been greatly annoyed by a Tetser in one of her hands, and the hand has been treated by several physicians during the past three or four years with the usual remedies, but without giving any relief. I suggested Swift's Specific and she took four bottles and is now apparently perfectly well. The medicine is smooth and not astringent, yet it removes the disease, for it is nervous, how this medicine recovers the system."

"Well about the other case?" "Well that was a lady also. She had been affected with the scurvy for four years. Her face, hands and arms were all her body, who was not a pauper, was charged with a poll-tax of $3.00. There is also charged to the person owning or harboring the same, $2.00 for each dog and $5.00 for each bitch. On all taxes remaining unpaid after the first day of April, 1884, a penalty of 10 per cent will also be added and taxes and penalty, with costs, will be collected by levy and sale of goods.

Real estate delinquent for taxes of 1883 or former years will be offered for sale on the second Monday of February, 1885.

ARSON ADDED TO MURDER.

Interest in the Richards Case Increased by the Burning of the Governor's Cabin—Davis Smith on the stand To-Day.

When Fred Richards came into court this morning he had to push his way through the crowd, and the spacious court room was packed. Interest in the case increases both from reason of the attempted suicide of the prisoner's daughter in Wells county, and the burning of Fred Richards' cabin and its contents, near Berne, last night. The witnesses are not permitted to listen to this testimony of the case, but are closeted in the old superior court room until called to the stand. A chart of the scene of Amos Backesto's murder is displayed for the benefit of the jurors and witnesses.

Richards always has the ear of his attorney and prompts the cross-examination. Sheriff Mike McGriff came up yesterday with a big party of witnesses from Adams county and the people are fierce against the alleged murderer. Just as the trial draws to a close three hundred people will come from Deacon, Berne and the surrounding country to witness the closing scenes and await the verdict.

George Richards, a brother of the prisoner, is held in jail here to testify against Backesto's murderer, and about half the other witnesses in the case are kept here at the expense of Adams county.

Jacob Brannaman—Richards told me in a conversation at Berne that Backesto had cut the lines to his harness and had caused a runaway, and that he would pay the s—n of a b—h for it.

Isaac Baker—The Saturday before the murder, in Berne, Richards pointed out Backesto to me and said, "There is a g—d d—s—n of a b—h I am going to kill."

Wm. Buffenberger—Had a conversation with Richards. He told me if I had any enemies in the county he would get them out of the way for twenty dollars. Said Amos Backesto would have to go to. This was in February, 1864, about a month prior to the murder.

Marion Buffenberger—Was in Berne with Wenz about two weeks before the murder. Wenz bought a new pair of No. 7 boots.

Davis Smith, a self accused accomplice in the crime, next took the witness stand. He related calmly how he, Richards and Wenz went on a tour for murder and robbery that night. First they went to Wagner's house. He stood at the farm gate while Richards and Wenz robbed the house in the presence of the inmates who were awake. Then they proceeded to the house of Amos Backesto. Here Smith again saw watch while Richards and Wenz forced an entrance to the house. He heard the fatal shot and was told by Richards that Backesto was killed. Smith traced the route of the three men the night of the murder on a chart, and a rigid cross-examination failed to shake the young man's story. Richards eyed his half brother viciously but did not change Smith.

The case will not be closed before the latter part of next week.

LEAPED FOR LIFE.

Engineer Doty and Fireman McDonald Desert a Pittsburgh Locomotive and Are Badly Hurt.

Early this morning as a west bound Pittsburg freight train approached Nevada, Ohio, the track inspector discovered a broken rail and jumping in front of the engine hastily summoned it to stop. The train was coming at the rate of twenty miles an hour and, of course, there was no chance of avoiding a casualty. Engineer Wm. Doty shut off the steam and reversed the engine and telling his fireman, Smith McDonald, to save himself, both men leaped for their lives. Doty fell heavily on his forehead, fracturing the lower part of the frontal bone of the head. McDonald, the fireman, was hurled down an embankment. His right arm was fractured, his left leg shattered and his face bruised. Both men were brought to this city on the limited express this morning. Doty was taken to his home on Keith street and McDonald to the St. Joe hospital. Dr. C. B. Stemen is attending to the injured men and says they will live. McDonald is a Knight of Pythias and roomed at 224 Calumet street. He has a wife and five children at Carlisle, Pa. The train did not leave the track.

The deceased was a married man and lived in Lafayette township, this county. In this city Dimus was well known and had relatives.

FRIDAY.

10:15 a. m.—How

BILL Nye on the Bump Translator.
(Puck.)

Much harm has been done by a long-haired physician in the west who has, during his life, felt of over a hundred thousand heads. A comparison of a large number of the charts given in these cases shows that, so far, no head examined would indicate anything less than a number of the lower house of congress. Artists, orators, prima-donnas and statesmen are the natural-born farmer, carpenter, shoemaker or chamberlain.

That is the reason butter is so high west of the Missouri river to-day, while genius actually runs riot.

What this day and age of the world need is a physiologist who will paw around among the intellectual domes of free-born American citizens and search out a few men who can milk a cow in a cool and unimpassioned tone of voice.

Let me say a word to the bright-eyed youth of America. Let me murmur in your ear this never-dying truth: When a long-haired crank asks you a dollar to tell you that a young Demosthenes, stand up and look yourself over at a distance before you swallow it all.

There is no use talking, we have got to procure provisions in some manner, and in order to do so the natural-born boos and sines of the country must go at it and promote the growth of such things, or else we artists, poets and statesmen will have to take off our standing collars and do it ourselves.

The Mental Giant Bump Translator.

Phrenology is a good thing, no doubt, if we can purify it. So long as it does not become the slave of capital, there is nothing about phrenology that is going to do harm; but when it becomes the creature of the trade dollar, it looks as though the country would be filled up with wild-eyed geniuses that hasn't had a square meal for two weeks. The time will surely come when America will demand less statesmanship and more flour; when less statesman and a purer, nobler and more progressive style of bumpster will demand our attention.

I had hoped that phrenology would step in and start this reform; but so far it has not, within the range of my observation. It may be, however, that the mental giant bump translator with whom I came in contact was not a fair representative. Still, he has been in the business for over 30 years, and some of our most polished criminals have passed under his hands.

Settled on the Spot.

[Detroit Free Press.]

After standing in front of the store for several minutes, seemingly undecided what to do, he entered and asked for the proprietor, and then began:

"My ole woman was gwine long yere last night fell down on your sidewalk an' busted her elbow."

"Ah! Well, being you are a poor man I'll

"But dat hasn't done, nah. A lawyer tell me dat you is responsible for dat slippery sidewalk, an' dat I kin git damages."

"Exactly, but you don't understand the matter. In the first place you muh for yo law, er and put up for court expenses. Then you prove that I own the sidewalk. Then you prove that your wife was not guilty of contributory negligence. Then you prove that your wife didn't bust her elbow by falling down stairs. Then I appeal the case, and the higher court grants a new trial. By that time your wife and her busted elbow are dead and buried and you are married agin, and you offer to settle for five pounds of brown sugar."

"Fo' de Lawd! but has I got to wude fre all dat?"

"All that and more. The grocery busines is set so close that I shall probably be a bankrupt by April, and then what good will a judgment do you?"

"De's so-darn-sa."

"Or the case may hang in the supreme court until both of us are dev'l."

"I see. And you would git two pounds of brown sugar to settle de case now?"

"And you would git two pounds of brown sugar to settle it?"

"Well, yes."

"Den you may do it up, and arter dis de ole woman takes de odder side of de street or we dissolve partnership. I spec'd abay minnit you war gwine to twist it around to levy on my household goods, and if I pu two pounds of sugar ahead I want to close de case to once afore you bring in a bill for contributory piracy!"

LOVE OR MONEY.

The Best Story of the Season.

The lawyer denounced to that. "No," said he; "keep your own counsel, don't let him know you are deserted and ruined; make a favor of coming, but come and a word in your ear—he can do more for you than Ibrahim can, or will ever do again. So don't you thwart him if you can help."

She was quick enough to see there was something weighty behind, and she consented. He took her back with him; only she was such a long time removing the traces of tears, and choosing the bonnet she thought she should look best in, that she made him twenty minutes late, and rather cross. It is a way women have of souring that honey-comb, a man.

When the trio met at the office, the husband was pale, the wife dull and sulken.

"It's the last time I shall trouble you, Lucy," said Monckton.

"As you please, Leonard."

"And I want you to make my fortune."

"You have only to tell me how." (Quite ingenuously.)

"You must accompany me to Derbyshire, or else meet me at Derby, whichever you please. Oh, don't be alarmed. I don't ask you to travel with me as man and wife."

"It doesn't much matter, I suppose," said Lucy doggedly.

"Well, you are accommodating; I'll be considerate."

"No doubt you will," said Lucy; then turning her glorious eyes full upon him.

"What's the crime?"

"The crime I'm wanted for; all your schemes are criminal, you know."

"Well, you're complimentary. It's not a crime this time; it's only a confession."

"Ah! What am I to confess—bigamy?"

"The ideal! No. You are to confess—in a distant part of England, what you can deny in London next day—that on a certain day you married a gentleman called Walter Clifford."

"I'll say that on the eleventh day of June, 1868, I married a gentleman who was called Walter Clifford."

This was Lucy's reply, and given very doggedly.

"Jravol and will you stand to it if the real Walter Clifford says it is a lie?"

Lucy reflected. "No, I will not."

"Well, well, we shall have time to talk about that; when can you start?"

"Give me three days."

"All right."

"You won't keep me there long after I have done this wicked thing?"

"No, no. I will send you home with flying colors, and you shall have your share of the plumbir."

"I'd rather go into service again and work my fingers to the bone."

"Since you have such a contempt for money, perhaps you'll stand fifty pounds?"

"I have no money with me, but I'll ask Mr. Middleton to advance me some."

She opened the door, and asked one of the clerks if she could see the principal for a moment. He came to her directly. She then said to him, "He wants fifty pounds; could you let me have it for him?"

"Oh," said the lawyer, cheerfully. "I shall be happy to lend Mr. Monckton fifty or a hundred pounds upon his own note of hand."

They both stared at him a little; but a blank note of hand was immediately produced, drawn, signed at six months' date for £50 10s., and the lawyer gave Monckton his check for £50.

Husband and wife then parted for a time. Monckton telephoned to his lodgings to say that his sister would come down with him for country air, and would require good accommodation, but would pay liberally.

Bartley, who seemed to live only to rescue the sufferers by his own fault, provided miles of rope, and had small cages knocked together, so that the debris was continually coming up from both the shafts, and one great source of delay was averted. But the other fatal cause of delay remained, and so daylight came and went, and the stars appeared with incredible rapidity to poor Walter and the other gallant workers, before they got within thirty feet of the pit; those who worked in the old shafts, having looser stuff to deal with, gained an advance of about seven feet upon the other working party, and this being reported to Walter, he went down the other shaft to inspire the men by words or example. He had not been down two hours when one of the miners cried, "Hold hard, they are working up to us," and work was instantly suspended for a moment. Then, sure enough, the sounds of pickaxes working below were just audible.

There was a roar of exultation from the rescuing party, and a man was sent up with his feet in a bucket, and clinging to a rope, to spread the joyful tidings; but the work was not intermitted for more than a moment, and in a few hours it became necessary to send the cage down and suspend the work to avoid another accident. The thin remaining crust gave way the way was clear, lamps were sent down, and the saving party were soon in the mine, with a sight before them never to be lost!"

"No," cried Bartley; "they must not be lost; they shall not be lost. One man has come to himself. I gave him portwine and brandy." Then he dragged the young man into the tent. There was stout Jim Davies propped up and held, but with a great tumbler of brandy and port in his hand.

"Now, my man," said he, "you are to be lost; you are to be lost. Tell me where you are, and I will do more for you than Ibrahim can, or will ever do again. So don't you thwart him if you can help."

"Master," said Jim, faintly. "I was in the hall with Mr. Hope and the lady when the first explosion came. Most of us ran past the old shaft and got clear. A few was caught by the falling shaft, for I looked back and saw it. But I never saw Master Hope among them. If he was he is buried under the shaft; and I do not think he was that bad villain that fired the mine, as he's like to be in the hall, either alive or dead."

He could say no more, but fell into a sort of doze, the result of the powerful stimulant on his unfeasted frame and empty stomach. Then Bartley, with trembling hands, brought out a map of the mine and showed Walter where the second party had got to.

"See," said he, "they are within twenty feet of the bottom, and the hall is twenty-three feet high. Hope measured it. Give up working downward, pick up the sides of that hall, for in that hall I see them at night
